CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

ARTICLE

Cambridge-medium Template

F. Author,*† S. Author,¶ T. Author,§ and F.T. Author‖

†First Division, Organization, Boston, 02210-1022, USA

‡ A second affilication,

¶Second Division, Organization, Boston, 2138, USA

§Third Division, Organization, New York, 10012, USA

‖Political Science, Organization, Chicago, 60637, USA

*Corresponding author. Email: first.author@address.edu

Abstract

This document is a template demonstrating the Cambridge-medium format.

Keywords: template demo

This Quarto template is unofficial and based on Overleaf's APSR template. The first sentence of the article should not be indented, so keep the above command. Some examples of commonly used commands and features are listed below, to help you get started.

Since we are in Quarto, you can cite with an @ symbol, like Knuth and Bibby (1984). As seen below, you can mix markdown and Latex with each other, though it's likely best to mostly use markdown.

Introduction

add text

Using Figures and Tables

explain

Conclusion

The conclusion text goes here.

Acknowledgement

Insert the Acknowledgment text here.

Funding Statement

Competing Interests

A statement about any financial, professional, contractual or personal relationships or situations that could be perceived to impact the presentation of the work — or 'None' if none exist.

References

Appendix

Appendix goes here!

References

Knuth, Donald Ervin, and Duane Bibby. 1984. The TEXbook. Vol. 3. Addison-Wesley Reading.